AFS Trip to Hungary - AFS Diplomat

Khushvardhan Patwa

When the acceptance letter arrived, it felt surreal. AFS is a globally revered institution, and knowing I was trusted to represent our school community in Hungary was an immense honour. It immediately shifted my mindset from being just a student to being a young diplomat. A milestone achieved in pursuit of a standard that only AFS could inspire. Suddenly academics achieved a new visionary identification.

From the classroom of 10-A to the Pinnacle of Global Shooting,

Kunwar Kartik Singh Deo walked into Germany as a competitor and left as an icon of national pride.

At the ISSF Junior World Championship, he showed the entire world what Indians are: unstoppable, precise and second to none. Yet, behind his focus lay an unseen anchor—a secret talisman providing the silent sanctuary that kept him unshakeable, helping him conquer the world while its origin remained entirely in the shadows. Never did an anchor obstruct his ascent.

THE PIZZA PARADOX !!

It is a well-known truth within our walls that few things move faster than a hungry boarding student sprinting toward the dining hall. However, that theory was thoroughly tested this week when, hundreds of pizzas managed to vanish into thin air in record time.

What began as a high-energy rush for the first slice quickly transitioned into a wonderful evening of camaraderie. With the empty boxes piled high and smiles filling the room, the event served as a perfect reminder of the value of our house community. Amidst the busy school term, it was the ideal opportunity for everyone to slow down, unwind and simply enjoy each other's company.

The Immortal

Alex was a poor guy in Stanford, England. His father was a car mechanic who was ill those days, so Alex had to learn his father's job. Brian was the owner of the car shop. Alex slowly learnt his father's job with perfection. He didn't know that he was about to change the world with his exceptional skills. One day, Alex dreamed about his great grandfather who was a juggler, and had died after a bad betrayal by his own son. In his dream his great grandfather told Alex that they were Immortal and that their job was to find the Geltin Stone, which was greyish in colour and much stronger than any magic known to man. Suddenly, Alex fell from the bed due to over thinking. the next morning he met Ohja (a future advisor). He told Alex that is town was trapped in shadows. then suddenly Lane, the son of Ohja took a branch and ignited it and cast a spell 'Lumos' and then Alex's body started shaking by some magical energy that suddenly transported him to the centre of the town. Then Ohja put out some black seed powder and threw it on Alex, which pulled Alex into the ground. After an hour Alex woke up from his dizziness and found himself in a pipe where he found and sensed a strange beam of light, which hit him straight in his eyes that stunned him. again out of no where his grandfather's spirit suddenly entered his body and guided him towards demolishing the Geltin stone with the famous Sword of Godric, which he had to transform out of the pipe itself, through connecting with God and his new found power. Through his beliefs and concentration he was able to transform the pipe into the famous sword and then with one dashing movement he struck the stone and shattered it with one clean strike. At the end the town was happy for the dark shadow had been lifted, Alex's father had also improved in health. In the end Alex had to keep this whole experience a secret for he was advised not to share that he was Immortal.

The Clock

Tick, Tick, Tick

The Clock speaks

The three hands of the clock always tick,

And twenty four hours the clock tweaks.

When he wants to see the time,

The clock sings the tick rhyme,

It shows the physic's bi-circular motion,

That tells us when to wake and when to sleep.

Manage time to spare,

With family who are dear,

Manage your time well,

And your life would surely be swell.

- Kadish Agrawal, 7A

An Unbroken Spirit

They can kill me,

But they cannot kill my ideas.

They can crush me,

But they cannot crush my spirit.

Maybe I am not immortal,

But my love for my country is.

They may be strong,

But I will try.

I will stand up again and again,

And I will never give up
